Course Description

Israeli politics attracts much attention worldwide for reasons that are related to the external relations and the security affairs of the state. However, the conflicts and issues that define Israeli foreign policy are fundamentally shaped and processed by the domestic political system. Since its inception in 1948, Israel has maintained a democratic system of government while at the same time creating a sovereign home for the Jewish people. The tension between the twin characteristics of the state of Israel as both Jewish and democratic is at the center of the main challenges that define Israeli politics. In this course we examine the historical, social and institutional factors that shape the contemporary domestic politics of the state of Israel.

Learning Objectives
Students are expected to develop an informed understanding of the Israeli political system by the end of the course:

1. By the midterm exam, students will be able to describe the history of Arab-Jews relations in Palestine and the history of the modern Zionist movement.
2. By the end of this course, students will be able to explain the origins and the operation of the main political institutions of the State of Israel.
3. By the end of the course, students will be able to identify the complexity of social cleavages and their effects on Israeli politics.
4. By the end of the course, students will recognize the interconnected nature of domestic politics, foreign policy and national security in the State of Israel.

Assessments

Assessments

Weekly Graded Quizzes (Graded starting Week 3)	10%
Mid-term exam	30%
Government formation simulation reflection	10%
Term paper	20%
Final Exam	30%

Assessment descriptions

Weekly Graded Quizzes (10%)

During the first two weeks, there will be an ungraded quiz for practice only due to the DNE deadline (Lesson 2 and Lesson 3 Quizzes Ungraded). Starting Week 4, the weekly quizzes will be graded. 1.25% per week. 8 quizzes (Lessons 4-11) will count towards the final grade. Weekly quizzes will be available 24h on the scheduled date and once activated, there will be a timer (timer TBD) for each quiz. The weekly quizzes will be available every Tuesday. Students registered with the ACSD will receive their extra time.

Mid-term exam (30%)

The mid-term examination format and instructions will be announced closer to the scheduled date.

Government formation simulation reflection (10%)

During Week 10, you will have to complete a mandatory exercise to simulate the formation of an Israeli government. The rules of the "game" will be explained in detail during Week 10. By the end of the week, you will have to submit a 500-word essay that describes the process and explains the results of your simulation. In addition to the assigned readings and the lectures, you should also refer to the following source that provides summaries about the history, ideology an leadership of Israeli political parties including the ones that are included in the simulation: https://www.jewishvirtuallibrary.org/israeli-political-parties

Term paper (20%)

You will have to write a research paper on a topic that will be assigned to you on November 2.

Final Exam (30%)

The final exam will be available for 3h on eConcordia. The Examinations Office schedules the Final Exam on a specific date and time. Do plan your schedules accordingly. Students registered with the ACSD will receive their extra time.

If you have a legitimate final exam conflict, you have two options, but you MUST take the necessary steps directly with the Examinations Office within the deadline date for an option below to apply. For more information, please visit the following link to work with the Examinations Office regarding potential options (https://www.concordia.ca/students/exams/conflicts.html)

As a student, you are expected to follow the email policy and to use your Concordia email in a respectful and responsible manner. The policy helps ensure that communication across the university is secure, reliable, and consistent.

Plagiarism

Department of Political Science Statement on Plagiarism

The Department of Political Science has zero tolerance for plagiarism.

1. What is plagiarism?

The University defines plagiarism as “the presentation of the work of another person, in whatever form, as one’s own or without proper acknowledgement” (Concordia Academic Code of Conduct, Article 19a, https://www.concordia.ca/content/dam/concordia/offices/provost/docs/Academic-Code-Conduct-2015.pdf). Plagiarism is an academic offence governed by the Code of Conduct (Academic). To find out more about how to avoid plagiarism, see the Concordia University Student Success Centre at: https://www.concordia.ca/students/success.html

2. What are the consequences of being caught?

Students caught plagiarizing are subject to the following sanctions:

(a) a written reprimand; (b) a piece of work be re-submitted; (c) an examination be taken anew; (d) a grade reduction or grade of zero for the piece of work in question; (e) a grade reduction or failing grade for the course; (f) a failing grade and ineligibility for a supplemental examination or any other evaluative exercise for the course; (g) the obligation to take and pass courses of up to twenty-four (24) credits in addition to the total number of credits required for the student’s program; (h) suspension for a period not to exceed six (6) academic terms. Suspensions shall entail the withdrawal of all University privileges, including the right to enter and be on University premises; (i) expulsion from the University. Expulsion entails the permanent termination of all University privileges. In the case of a student who has already graduated, the only two available sanctions are (i) a notation on the student’s academic record that he or she has been found guilty of academic misconduct; or (ii) a recommendation to Senate for the revocation of the degree obtained. (Academic Code of Conduct, Articles 21-25)

Complete regulations can be found in the Academic Code of Conduct.

Intellectual Property

Content belonging to instructors shared in online courses, including, but not limited to, online lectures, course notes, and video recordings of classes remain the intellectual property of the faculty member. It may not be distributed, published or broadcast, in whole or in part, without the express permission of the faculty member. Students are also forbidden to use their own means of recording any elements of an online class or lecture without express permission of the instructor. Any unauthorized sharing of course content may constitute a breach of the Academic Code of Conduct and/or the Code of Rights and Responsibilities.

Changes of the Syllabus

The instructor reserves the right to amend the schedule of meetings and assignments listed in this syllabus as might become necessary based on events throughout the semester. Any changes to the syllabus will be announced and students will receive an amended syllabus in writing. Copies of the most up to date syllabus can be found on the course website on Moodle.

Third Party Software/Websites

Here is an excerpt on Concordia's policy on Educational software or services developed and owned by third parties, including those linked to textbooks, in-class surveys, lecture capture, virtual classrooms, course assignments and quizzes can be invaluable tools for the development and teaching of courses.

Third-Party software/websites that require personal information (name, email, student number, etc.):

Students are advised that external software and/or websites will be used in the course and students may be asked to submit or consent to the submission of personal information (for example, name and email) to register for an online service. Students are responsible for reading and deciding whether or not to agree to any applicable terms of use. Use of this software and service is voluntary. Students who do not consent to the use the software or service should identify themselves to the course instructor as soon as possible, and in all cases before the DNE deadline, to discuss alternate modes of participation.

Third-party software/websites for work submission:

Students are advised that external software and/or websites will be used in the course and students may be asked to submit or consent to the submission of their work to an online service. Students are responsible for reading and deciding whether or not to agree to any applicable terms of use. Use of this software and service is voluntary. Students who do not consent to the use the software or service should identify themselves to the course instructor as soon as possible to discuss alternate modes of participation that do not require them to give copyright or the right to use their work to a third party.

By using the external software or websites, students agree to provide and share their work and certain personal information (where applicable) with the website/software provider. Students are advised that the University cannot guarantee the protection of intellectual property rights or personal information provided to any website or software company. Intellectual property and personal information held in foreign jurisdictions are subject to the laws of such jurisdictions.

Third-party technology to record a course:

Note that, as a part of this course, some or all of the lectures and/or other activities in this course may be recorded. Recordings will be focused on the instructor and will normally exclude students. It is possible, however, that your participation may be recorded. If you wish to ensure that your image are not recorded, speak to your instructor as soon as possible.

Also, please note that you may not share recordings of your classes and that the instructor will only share class recordings for the purpose of course delivery and development. Any other sharing may be in violation of the law and applicable University policies, and may be subject to penalties.
